Immigration and Asylum

Holyrood Parliamentary Motion

S4M-08053 Kevin Stewart: Condemnation of the Home Secretary—That the Parliament condemns the Home Secretary for what it considers is her refusal to engage with Members of the Scottish Parliament regarding individual immigration cases; believes that it is the right of people in a democracy to engage with constituency politicians of their choosing to act on their behalf and that the Home Secretary should recognise these democratic principles; recognises that MPs engage on devolved issues for their constituents on a day-to-day basis without impediment, and hopes for the day when Scotland's Parliament gains powers for immigration and all other policy areas.

Westminster Parliamentary Questions

Immigration: Married People

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department following the High Court judgment of 5 July 2013 on the minimum income threshold for spouses or partners and children applying in the family route, what guidance her Department has issued regarding passports and other documents that have been submitted with applications made under Appendix FM to the Immigration Rules that have been subject to the hold on decision-making. [170617]

Reply from Mark Harper: The Home Office has issued guidance to applicants on its immigration website (at the following link) which includes advice for those whose case is subject to the hold on decision-making and who want their passport returned because they need to travel.

<http://www.ukba.homeoffice.gov.uk/sitecontent/newsfragments/88-min-income-update>

The Home Office's immigration website contains guidance for applicants (at the following link) on how to ask for the return of other documents.

Human Trafficking

Baroness Scotland of Aghal: To ask Her Majesty's Government what plans they have to tackle human trafficking in the Commonwealth; and whether such a response involves regional and international institutions.[HL2551]

Reply from the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Home Office (Lord Taylor of Holbeach) (Con): The Government provides advice and guidance to support other countries, including in the Commonwealth, to strengthen their arrangements to tackle human trafficking. This includes information gathering, collaboration with civil society organisations, joint investigations and specific support to develop their criminal justice response.

Lord Hylton: To ask Her Majesty's Government what steps they are taking to strengthen the ability of the national referral mechanism to identify victims of trafficking and to give them adequate support, following the review by the United Nations Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women Committee; and whether they will prevent the holding of unconvicted trafficked women in prisons.[HL2593]

Reply from Lord Taylor of Holbeach: Year on year referrals to the National Referral Mechanism (NRM) are increasing with more victims than ever receiving support through the Government's adult victim care contract with The Salvation Army. We continue to monitor the NRM to ensure it is best able to identify and support trafficked victims. The UK does not routinely hold trafficking victims in prison, however where a victim of trafficking is arrested for an offence but not immediately identified as a victim they may be detained. The Government is exploring how it can better identify and support such individuals who have entered the criminal justice process.

Human Trafficking: Victim Support Schemes

Lindsay Roy: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what support her Department provides to women who have been trafficked in order to assist their rehabilitation into civil society. [171885]

Reply from Shailesh Vara: Women identified as potential victims of human trafficking and referred to the National Referral Mechanism—the Government's formal identification process—are entitled to receive support under a contract which has been operated by the Salvation Army since July 2011. The contract supports both female and male victims and is jointly-funded by the Ministry of Justice and the Home Office. In 2012-13 £3 million was provided to the Salvation Army to run the contract.

Based on the victim's individual needs, the Salvation Army will ensure they are provided with the appropriate services to aid their recovery from the trauma of being trafficked. The Salvation Army have a wide and diverse supply chain of 12 sub-contractors who support victims in the most appropriate environment and tailor support according to need. This includes the provision of safe and secure accommodation, providing access to legal advice and preparing individuals for work through arranging access to training courses and mentoring.

Victims are entitled to support under the contract for a minimum of 45 days or until they have received a 'Conclusive Grounds' decision to confirm they are a victim of trafficking. At this point the Salvation Army will work to support all victims to ensure an appropriate exit from the contract and into other support services or the safe return to their home country.

Racism and Religious Hatred

Holyrood Parliamentary Motion

S4M-08049 Jackie Baillie: Show Racism the Red Card's Fortnight of Action—That the Parliament welcomes the 10th annual Show Racism the Red Card's Fortnight of Action in Scotland, which runs from 18 to 31 October 2013; echoes Show Racism the Red Card's call to stand against racism and sectarianism; notes what it sees as the success of the over 500 actions that took place in 2012 and the intention to expand the diversity and reach of such initiatives; commends the action by all of the professional football clubs across Scotland in setting aside their rivalries to come together to champion this important issue, and encourages people everywhere to speak out against racial stereotypes, cultural ignorance and intolerance.
