

Vaccine Information Fund Guidelines

Context

As Scotland moves through its vaccination programme, it is crucial that all of the people of Scotland have informed and equal access to information about the vaccine.

Through the evidence developed as part of BEMIS Scotland & the Ethnic Minority National Resilience Network Health and Vaccination Survey, we know that not all individuals and communities have or are able to access information in the same way.

In relation to Scotland's minority ethnic communities and increasing access to relevant and responsive information regarding the vaccination, we are informed that:

- Trusted local partners should be used to help share information.
- Some events, like online Q&As with health professionals or meetings about vaccination must have capacity to be held in mother tongue languages.
- Not everyone accesses written information. For some people videos and visuals are better. These assets should also be available in different languages.
- Some of the translations of vaccine information use overly complicated language.
- Some questions affect all minority ethnic communities. What is in the vaccine? Is it safe? What are the side effects? However, there are also specific issues for Asylum seekers, multi-generational minority ethnic groups, newer migrant individuals and communities, and African and Black communities

As such, as part of the Scottish Government efforts to ensure equal access to information regarding the Vaccines, BEMIS Scotland are commencing an Vaccine Information Fund programme to empower communities to have engagement sessions about the vaccine programme and develop information assets that can be used for different communities.

- You must have an organisation bank account in the name of your organisation (not a personal account)

What can you do?

Whatever needs to be done to help everyone in our communities access the required information about vaccination.

E.g.

- Raise awareness of the vaccine and the vaccination programme
- Run online engagement sessions to discuss the vaccine
- Create written or visual information resources in members' mother tongues
- Overcome and dispel misinformation about Covid-19 and the vaccine
- Any other creative ideas

We need your expertise, so we will listen to all suggestions as to the best way to do this.

Note: All activities must comply with all relevant Covid-19 social distancing rules, which can be found at <https://www.gov.scot/coronavirus-covid-19/>

Examples

Below are just examples of what you could do. If you want to do something else or different then just let us know.

- 1) Host a series of online events for your community to raise awareness about the vaccine and vaccination process and ask questions. If you would like BEMIS to support you to invite a health professional to your session please let us know. We are happy to help.
- 2) Develop a mother tongue resource that can be used to help share information to your community and others who share the same language.
- 3) Use an ongoing service or event to enable people to have an open discussion about the vaccine in any language that is best. After that we can work together, BEMIS and your organisation, to host another event to answer any questions that are coming up. That could include inviting experts along and enabling you to provide translation service if needed.
